Joshua Aldridge

University of Technology Sydney

The 2021 Technical Award winner is Joshua Aldridge from the University of Technology Sydney (UTS) for his years of service leading and supporting a range of projects related to the maintenance and repair of seawater systems and field equipment at UTS, Macquarie University and the Sydney Institute of Marine Science (SIMS).

With a degree in marine science from the University of Wollongong and extensive experience in marine science technical support, Joshua has applied his problem-solving skills to the redesign of the Macquarie seawater system and marine laboratories, as well as facilitating experiments at SIMS. In addition, he enthusiastically goes the extra mile to support scientists by supporting, guiding, and training them in technical aspects of their research.
